2025 SPONSORSHIP PROPOSALS

State Sponsorship Proposals

DENTAL CARE ACCESS FOR VULNERABLE POPULATIONS

Improve access to dental care for vulnerable populations to obtain needed care and to address oral health and overall health disparities.

CREATING A REGIONWIDE STREET HEALTH INITIATIVE

Seek a change in law to ensure Medi-Cal reimbursement is available for street medicine services in order to remove barriers to health for people experiencing homelessness.

Federal Sponsorship Proposals

MOBILE PHARMACY DEA REGISTRATION

Seek a change in law that would waive the requirement of a separate DEA registration for a mobile pharmacy and instead allow the mobile pharmacy to operate as an extension of a pharmacy license held by a county, city and county, or special hospital authority.

HOME HARDENING TAX EXEMPTION

Seek a change in law that would exempt a qualified catastrophe mitigation payment under a state program for wildfire, wind, and earthquake mitigation measures from federal income tax, thereby making the state-funded portion of a home hardening grant tax-exempt at the federal level.

2025 PRIORITY ISSUES

The County of San Diego (County) will actively engage in legislation and related actions in the following areas at the State and federal level to ensure such legislation benefits County Operations and the clients, customers, and constituents we serve.

The County will actively pursue all available funding to lift up and invest in our communities to ensure the San Diego region receives its fair share of resources.

The County will oppose any legislative efforts that run counter to our stated priorities.

Affordable Housing

The San Diego region needs more affordable housing. The demand for new affordable housing is greater than the number of units developed, and available housing is beyond the reach of many families to buy or rent. Reports continue to show that housing in San Diego County is among the most expensive in the nation, and economic conditions have significantly impacted those who are most in need of affordable housing solutions.

The County and cities in the region operate several programs to provide, preserve, and develop affordable housing. These programs offer rental assistance, affordable housing opportunities for renters, financial assistance for first-time homebuyers and veterans, resources for persons at risk of or experiencing homelessness, and financing for the development of affordable housing.

The County will engage in efforts to increase the number of rental assistance vouchers available and enhance funding for rental assistance programs that support low-income and other vulnerable populations. The County will also work with local municipalities, community partners, the State, and the federal government to ensure legislation supports the creation of affordable housing in our region, in alignment with the goals and strategies of the County of San Diego Housing Blueprint. The County will also seek ways to partner with public entities and other sectors to facilitate more workforce housing, including in locations aligning with climate action and sustainability priorities. As the County works to increase the net housing supply in the region, it will support reforms that will allow for a fairer allocation of the State's Regional Housing Needs Assessment (RHNA) credits. The County will also pursue opportunities for "community benefit" co-located services with affordable housing, such as child care, healthy food, and medical services. The County will support legislation that streamlines these processes and adequately funds administrative costs to deliver services.

Behavioral Health

The County is guided by a broad vision of a behavioral health system characterized by upstream prevention and continuous care, rather than perpetual crisis. This system is rooted in a regionally distributed and coordinated model that is data-driven and culturally responsive. The County will support legislation that advances this framework for behavioral health services for children, youth, and adults and will leverage State funding opportunities (including those made available by Proposition 1) to achieve this vision.

There is a significant behavioral health worker shortage locally and nationally. Ranging from peer support specialists to psychiatrists, behavioral health workers serve some of our most vulnerable populations along the behavioral health continuum of care. To address this crisis, the County will support legislation that addresses behavioral health worker recruitment, training, and retention, including recruiting a diverse workforce that is culturally inclusive.

Climate Change and the Environment

The County will work with regional partners to advance efforts to reduce the impacts of climate change in San Diego County, including achieving zero carbon emissions no later than 2045. These efforts include, but are not limited to, reducing greenhouse gas emissions, programs and policies that prioritize environmental justice and equity, support of local food systems and community resiliency, preservation of natural ecosystems, and promotion of sustainable agricultural practices for carbon sequestration. In addition, the County will advocate for legislation and funding that aligns with both state and federal 30x30 conservation efforts. The County will also focus on additional key areas:

WILDFIRES

Due to the history of catastrophic wildfires in the region, the County continues to pursue opportunities for risk reduction by improving local policies and implementing innovative programs to help residents prepare for the next disaster. Wildfires are naturally occurring within the San Diego region and need to be managed as such. Climate change is making the wildfires in our region more destructive and more frequent, such that fire season is nearly year-round. The County employs a comprehensive approach to fire protection, which includes areas of focus such as fire suppression (expanding coverage and purchasing equipment), fire and building codes, defensible space, land use planning, and community engagement through education and outreach. The County will engage in legislation and administrative action that addresses habitat management and restoration; supports the removal of dead, dying, and diseased trees; reduces community wildfire risk and/or strengthens community resiliency following a major wildfire; adopts land use changes to avoid building in high wildfire-prone areas; promotes home hardening in vulnerable communities; and addresses post-fire flood mitigation issues. The County will also support efforts to expand broadband infrastructure in high-risk wildfire areas to strengthen emergency response.

WATER QUALITY

Under the Beach and Bay Water Quality Monitoring Program, the County Department of Environmental Health and Quality (DEHQ) performs beach water quality sampling for compliance with State health standards. When poor water quality or sewage impacts are identified, an advisory, warning, or water contact closure is issued, and the public is notified through a number of different outlets, including social media, a website, telephone hotline, press releases, and posted signs on affected beaches. Additionally, as an international border county, local beaches in the South Bay may also be impacted by cross-border sewage flows, making binational and regional coordination and responsiveness to potential beach water quality impacts essential for public health protection. Funding to support local beach water quality monitoring and information-sharing is beneficial for public health authorities in the border region. The County will seek all funding and infrastructure improvement opportunities—including state and federal resources—to improve river and beach water quality and keep communities safe. Additionally, the County will engage in legislation to support increased funding for beach water testing efforts, improved scientific methods for testing, and additional programs. The region also has an aging sewer and stormwater infrastructure system in need of more funding, particularly in the areas of drainage, source control, green infrastructure, and sewer restoration opportunities. The County will engage in legislation and pursue funding for stormwater capture and flood risk reduction, the repair and improvement of sewer and stormwater infrastructure, and the preservation and restoration of riparian habitat.

HABITAT

There currently are more than 60 species in San Diego County listed as rare, threatened, or endangered by the state and federal governments, and there are more species of concern in San Diego than in any other county in the continental United States. The implementation of multi-species Habitat Conservation Plans (HCPs), as well as Natural Community Conservation Plans (NCCPs), is critical to our conservation measures. The County will engage in legislation and pursue funding that protects habitats and species of concern across the region and increases the adoption of local native plants in public and private landscaping.

ENVIRONMENTAL JUSTICE AND PROTECTION

Environmental justice is defined as the equal protection and meaningful involvement of all people, regardless of race, color, national origin, or income, with respect to the development, implementation, and enforcement of environmental laws, regulations, and policies. Climate justice acknowledges that climate change can have differing social, economic, public health, and other adverse impacts on underserved populations. Historically, the effects of climate change, pollution, and other environmental issues have disproportionately impacted underserved communities, Tribal Nations, and communities of color. The County will support legislation and pursue funding for initiatives and efforts to support mitigation, adaptation, and resilience promotion measures to reduce the public health impacts of climate change (e.g., excessive heat, wildfire smoke/air quality, vector borne diseases). The County will engage in legislation and pursue funding that supports the County Climate Action Plan (CAP) and the County Office of Sustainability and Environmental Justice (OSEJ) as they work to achieve zero carbon emissions and safeguard the health of the region's people and natural resources. The CAP Team and OSEJ continue to collaborate with all County departments, other agencies such as the San Diego County Air Pollution Control District, other jurisdictions, Tribal Nations, and community stakeholders to set measurable goals and shepherd sustainability solutions that support equitable and healthy communities. They seek to do this by reducing air pollution, greenhouse gas emissions, and exposure to toxic and hazardous waste, while also reducing disparities and expanding opportunities for traditionally underserved communities. The County will engage in legislation and pursue funding for efforts to mitigate and reverse the impacts of climate change on all communities, with an urgent focus on low-income communities and communities of color that bear some of the greatest effects of climate change, to ensure a healthy environment for all to live, learn, work, and play.

FOOD SYSTEMS

A food system includes all processes and infrastructure in place to feed a population; from all the inputs that are necessary to grow food, to the management of wasted food, and everything in between: production, manufacturing and processing, storage and distribution, consumption, and disposal of food and food-related products. The County will support legislation and pursue funding for initiatives and efforts to support access to healthy, local, and affordable food, climate-smart and resilient agriculture, preservation of agricultural lands, nutrition security and education, and wasted food prevention and recovery to ensure a safe, equitable, and sustainable food system for the San Diego region.

Data Infrastructure

Data is essential to shaping public policy that is equitable, impactful, and appropriate. The County of San Diego interfaces with many data portals to administer programs funded by the state and federal governments. The County will advocate that data systems are modernized, interconnected, accurate, and responsive to community needs. The County will also support legislation that provides funding and capability to enhance our own data efforts. Additionally, the County will advocate for policies providing person-centered case management and support, supporting care coordination and data sharing, and for enabling more robust program evaluation, performance measurement, and operations-focused analytics. The County will work with the National Association of Counties (NACo) and the NACo Artificial Intelligence (AI) Exploratory Committee as they develop policy recommendations related to AI and cybersecurity. Furthermore, the County will advocate on legislation and/or other related actions that encourage AI innovation, but that also protect safety, security, and individual civil rights.

Early Care, Support, and Education

Essential to the well-being of any community is adequate support for children and families. The County has fundamentally shifted the traditional approach to child protection by providing family strengthening and prevention services to families in a more holistic and integrated way. This involves keeping families together, holding the family's voice as the expert in how to best keep their children safe, and reducing unnecessary child protective actions, which have historically harmed and separated families. The County will pursue opportunities to support legislation that advances this safety and prevention framework and that addresses worker recruitment, training, and retention to serve these populations.

Research has shown that the prenatal period creates the foundation of a child's future healthy development. The rapid brain development that occurs in the first five years of life makes these the most formative years in a child's life. Prioritizing and improving the existing systems to support healthy development and overall well-being for all children throughout the County is crucial. The County, working locally with First 5 and with the state and federal governments, will advocate for and leverage available resources to support pregnant individuals and children from birth to five years of age.

Child care is vital to families, children, and employers, yet too many San Diegans cannot find or afford quality child care that meets their needs. To address this challenge, the County will support legislation prioritizing accessible child care for all families, in alignment with the County Child Care Blueprint. The County will pursue funding opportunities and legislation that support the child care provider workforce to be well-trained and fairly and competitively compensated for high-quality child care and education services. The County will pursue legislative action and funding opportunities that support the State's Rate and Quality Workgroup Report recommendations and the accompanying modeling of an alternative methodology rate structure. These recommendations include changing the current reimbursement methodology, incorporating living wage floors, and continuously evaluating the rate-setting methodology to address equity and adjust for changing conditions and rising costs.

Additionally, the County will advocate for changes to local and state regulations and practices to improve existing child care facilities and develop new facilities.

Ensuring Safe Communities

One of the most important roles of local government is ensuring the safety of the public. It is critical to keep all members of our community protected.

DISASTERS AND EMERGENCIES

The County will support legislation and efforts to ensure all-hazard preparation, planning, mitigation, response, and recovery to foster safe, strong, and capable communities. This includes, but is not limited to, support for funding to purchase and/or acquire firefighting helicopters and other related equipment and apparatus.

The County will engage in legislation and related actions at the state and federal level that will allow the County to adequately respond to future public health crises, including, but not limited to, resources and efforts to combat health misinformation that undermines an emergency response and poses a threat to public health. In addition, the County will also engage in legislation that bolsters public health infrastructure and workforce across all levels of government.

COMMUNITY SAFETY

The County aims to advocate for policies that create a system that is equitable, fair, and just. It is vital not only that crime rates remain low but also that the community feels safe where they live, work, and play, which includes fostering trust with members of the law enforcement community.

The County will engage in legislation that protects the safety of those in our community, strengthens relations between communities and law enforcement, provides necessary resources to our justice partners to provide training and rehabilitative programming, and provides services and support to victims of crime, disasters, and emergencies.

The County will also support state and federal legislation that furthers reforms related to reducing gun violence, including background checks for firearm purchases, budgetary commitments to invest in the communities most impacted by everyday gun violence, safe storage of firearms, safe and voluntary transfer of firearms, and/or new oversight and accountability measures for the gun industry.

The County will pursue state and federal resources to support the infrastructure needs of County detention facilities to ensure proper medical and mental health care can be advanced and rehabilitative programming can be further administered in accordance with the Sheriff's Department comprehensive service delivery model.

Equitable Access to Quality Health and Social Care

Historic inequities within the healthcare system, including social and economic factors, have resulted in poorer health outcomes among Black, Indigenous, and people of color, including reduced life expectancy and increased risk for some chronic diseases and other morbidities. As a major source of healthcare coverage for over one million San Diego County residents, including low-income children, older adults, and people with disabilities, Medi-Cal can help advance equity goals and reduce disparities by increasing access to health and social care services, identifying new and innovative approaches to service delivery, and implementing changes to managed care, provider payments, and benefits. The County will support legislation that strengthens the local wellness delivery system and addresses social drivers of health to improve the health and well-being of children, older adults, justice-involved individuals, people at risk of or experiencing homelessness, and others receiving Medi-Cal benefits. The County will support legislation that improves access to recuperative care for all San Diegans. The County will also support legislation that enables the State to hold commercial health plans accountable for equity and parity, as well as reasonable reimbursement rates for behavioral health services and consistency across plans regarding care standards and expectations. In addition, the County will support legislation and administrative actions that would lead to increased Medicaid reimbursement rates for California to ensure that Medi-Cal recipients in San Diego County have access to a robust and adequately funded system of care, including, but not limited to, bringing down the cost of critical prescription medications, especially for those on Medicaid and Medicare.

Equity and Justice

The legacy of systemic racism and racial inequities continues to negatively impact many communities in the San Diego region, and the County is committed to advocating for policy changes to address these historical wrongs. The County's work on equity and racial justice is ongoing and informs our work, both within the County organization and in the community at large.

ACHIEVING EQUITY

The County will engage with legislation that dismantles barriers encountered by Black, Indigenous, people of color, women, LGBTQIA+ communities, people with intellectual and physical disabilities, immigrants and refugees, and other populations in all aspects of life, including, but not limited to, healthcare, education, criminal justice reform, housing, environmental justice, economic development, and wealth generation.

ECONOMIC JUSTICE

Matters of economic justice and fairness remain at the core of an equitable society. Social safety net programs provide much-needed assistance for those who are struggling to make ends meet, yet the stigmatization around such programs often prevents those who would benefit from these programs from seeking this assistance.

CIVIL RIGHTS PROTECTIONS

The protection of civil rights remains the bedrock of a functioning democracy. The County will support and advocate for legislation to uphold civil rights protections.

Homelessness

The County works collaboratively with service providers, the regional Continuum of Care, the Regional Task Force on Homelessness, and other jurisdictions, non-profits, and community partners to administer or deliver a range of health and social services to people who are at risk of or experiencing homelessness, in both incorporated and unincorporated areas of the county. The County also provides housing linkages, street outreach, case management, care coordination, connection to primary care and behavioral health services, and emergency housing for people who are at risk of or experiencing homelessness. The County takes the lead, where appropriate, to secure federal and State resources and works collaboratively with the non-profit community and participating jurisdictions in the completion of competitive grants from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and state and federal agencies for funds that would assist people who are at risk of or experiencing homelessness.

The County will advocate for legislation and funding that provides effective prevention, intervention, and access to affordable housing for people who are at risk of or experiencing homelessness, with the overarching goal that any homelessness in our region should be rare, brief, and non-recurring. This legislation should provide consistent and sustainable funding at a level commensurate with the need and be flexible enough to administer to meet the specific needs of our region.

Insurance Accessibility and Affordability

The rising cost of insurance in all aspects of life is putting pressure on residents of the San Diego region and is increasingly limiting affordability of housing, business, and everyday needs. High insurance costs can make owning a home or operating a business out of reach for residents, and the uncertainty surrounding whether insurance will even be available causes undue stress and anxiety. The County will engage in legislative and administrative efforts to lower insurance costs and increase insurance coverage and availability for Californians.

Nutrition Security

Data reports continue to show that one in four San Diegans, and one in three children, struggle with nutrition security, part of a concerning trend in the rise of food insecurity across the country. Many flexibilities enacted by Congress around nutrition programs like SNAP and WIC during the height of the COVID-19 pandemic illustrated the positive impact these programs have when barriers to access are eliminated. As too many San Diego County residents struggle with nutrition security, recent changes to programs like SNAP to increase accessibility require additional outreach resources. Additionally, longstanding barriers to access for populations like older adults and college students should end. The County will support and advocate for legislation to provide more access to vital nutrition programs for San Diegans. The County will also support legislation to reduce barriers to lawful access to crucial social safety net programs and legislation that promotes increased security measures for EBT cards.

Older Adults

There are approximately 710,500 San Diego County residents aged 60 and older, and by 2030, that number is expected to grow to approximately 850,000. San Diego County's over-85 population is projected to diversify and grow faster than any other age group. Thus, it is crucial that the needs of the region's older adults are considered as we plan for the future. The County has adopted an Aging Roadmap as the regional plan to ensure that the region has programs and communities that equitably support the needs and leverage the contributions of all older adults in the San Diego region. The Aging Roadmap identifies specific goals and action steps in ten priority areas: Health and Community Support, Housing, Social Participation, Transportation, Dementia-Friendly, Caregiver Support, Safety, Preparedness and Response, the Silver Economy, and Medical and Social Services.

The County will pursue funding opportunities to support the vision of the Aging Roadmap and engage in legislation that promotes a robust system of support for the aging population in San Diego County. The County will advocate for a timely reauthorization of the Older Americans Act and ensure the continuation of vital programs for older adults.

Reproductive Healthcare

In 2021, the Board of Supervisors declared the County a champion for reproductive freedom, yet individuals still face barriers to reproductive care access in the San Diego region. Meanwhile, active efforts are underway across the country to undermine the rights previously recognized under Roe v. Wade, with increasing efforts anticipated to further restrict access to necessary care. These initiatives have already had devastating impacts and will continue to disproportionately impact those populations that already face barriers to accessing medical care: communities of color, people with low incomes, immigrants, and young people.

The County will identify, prioritize, and advocate for sexual and reproductive health care funding, programs and services that increase access and protect individuals seeking to obtain and provide reproductive health services in the region. In addition, the County will support regulatory, budgetary, and legislative efforts that strengthen access to abortion medications such as misoprostol and mifepristone and support efforts to ensure access to reproductive health medications via mail delivery.

Tijuana River Valley

The Tijuana River Valley in South San Diego County continues to suffer from one of the worst environmental disasters of our time. The combination of a rising population in the binational region and aging infrastructure, exacerbated by increased cross-border sewage and runoff flows and a lack of investment from both federal governments, has allowed the pollution crisis to get worse over time. The impact of the pollution is felt in a myriad of ways across the San Diego region, from the health and well-being of thousands of local residents to local businesses that rely on tourism at nearby beaches. The sewage crisis also has national security implications, as the pollution floods roads used by Customs and Border Protection (CBP) on a regular basis, causing rapid deterioration of vehicles and other CBP equipment.

The Board of Supervisors declared the water pollution crisis a state of emergency in June 2023, and unhealthy levels of bacteria in beach water originating from the Tijuana River caused the closure of some South County beaches for over 1,000 consecutive days. The County has since advocated to the International Boundary Water Commission (IBWC), the White House, Congress, the Government of Mexico, and other federal agencies to increase its investment in solving this problem, underscoring the urgent community needs. In response, the White House announced support for our efforts, Congress appropriated millions of dollars for fixing the South Bay International Wastewater Treatment Plant (SBIWTP), and the Government of Mexico began construction of a more robust treatment plant that is scheduled to go to online in 2025.

Renewed attention from policymakers continues to make a positive impact on the crisis, but more must be done. The County will continue to support legislative efforts to bring more federal support to the IBWC in order to complete the remaining repairs needed for the SBIWTP. The County will advocate for more federal and state funds be directed to agencies like the Air Pollution Control District to increase available resources to monitor air quality in the region. The County will also support legislation that addresses the needed rehabilitation of the Tijuana River Valley watershed. The County will continue to meet with federal agencies to support the health and well-being of impacted residents and to discuss ways to repair the economic harm the ongoing crisis inflicts on our residents.

Transportation

Improving the transportation network throughout the San Diego region while maintaining environmental quality is a high priority for the County. The County has seen an increased demand placed on the region's transportation system, which requires balancing the need for both road maintenance projects and transit infrastructure to alleviate traffic congestion, environmental impacts, and the degradation of existing roadways. Additionally, increasing zero and low carbon transportation options is an important component for the future of transportation and mobility in the region, as they improve fuel economy, lower fuel costs, and reduce emissions. The County will pursue funding opportunities and engage in legislation that provides the necessary resources for our region to maintain and/or improve its transportation network and reduce vehicle miles traveled, enhance resiliency, along with efforts to reduce emissions through green technology and increase multi-modal transportation opportunities in the unincorporated area.

Veterans

San Diego County is home to one of the largest concentrations of military personnel in the nation, and it's estimated more than one-third of county residents are connected to the military in some fashion as active duty, veterans, or family members. The County Office of Military and Veterans Affairs assists active-duty military, veterans, and their dependents and survivors to obtain the federal and state benefits that they are entitled to receive. It also supports the provision of services and supports to the families of active military members in San Diego County. The San Diego region is a diverse and dynamic border community with a history enriched by immigrants from many countries and backgrounds. The County will support legislation that fosters the return and naturalization of deported service members who served in our armed forces and military. The County values and honors the service and sacrifice of those who serve in our armed forces, and pursuant to these values, the County will engage in legislation to support our military and veteran community. This includes adequate funding for programs, appropriate benefits and services, and housing for active-duty military, veterans, including dependents of living and deceased veterans, and support for veterans with housing vouchers.

In the absence of meaningful immigration reform, there will continue to be waves of migration to our region without adequate support for the asylum seekers, the border communities who welcome them, or the communities to which they are traveling for residence.

The Board of Supervisors approved a concept paper describing what is needed to provide a long-term solution to provide humanitarian support to those seeking asylum in our country. A permanent Migrant Transfer Site and Respite Shelter is needed in our region to serve as a one-stop-shop to assist with the needs of migrants, including onward travel to their sponsors. With a firm plan in hand, the County will advocate consistently at the state and federal level for funding, acquisition of a site, and ongoing staffing and services support. The plan also supports our regional partners to seek philanthropic matching funds for this effort as additional sources of funding.

The inverse of the following statements is also true. The County will oppose any legislative efforts that run counter to our stated guiding principles and policy guidelines.
