- 1. Is determined to be essential to the care and well being of the participant.
2. Is not obligated for the support of the participant.
3. Would not be living in the unit, except to provide the necessary supportive services for the participant.

The live-in aide is not counted as a household member and their income is not counted. They would not be eligible for continued assistance, should the Section 8 participant die. In order to qualify for a live-in aide, a State of California-licensed medical or social service professional must state in writing the reason a live-in aide is necessary to provide care for the elderly/ near elderly/ disabled participant. The live-in aide's non-dependent family members' income will be counted for purposes of determining eligibility or level of benefits.
